

It's Not too Late to Register...

Central Virginia Writing Project's 2008 Conference at UVA's Curry School, November 15

A keynote address by Dr. Margo Figgins titled, "Connecting with Students: What Do You Do When the Line is Busy?" will kick off the conference, followed by an interesting selection of breakout sessions. Participants may also take part in a special luncheon session, "Meet Your Favorite Expert," featuring Carol Ann Tomlinson, expert on differentiated instruction; Marcia Invernizzi, authority on spelling & co-author of Words Their Way; Michael McKenna, prolific researcher in the fields of reading comprehension and motivation; & Margo Figgins, professor of English Education, founder of the UVA Writers Workshop, and writing consultant (please see attached bifold).

For more information, visit the Central Va. Writing Project website: www.cvwp.org. Click on "Upcoming Events."

Note that if 3 or more teachers from any one school division register before Saturday, they may receive the student rate.

We hope to see you there!

Sincerely,
Jessica
